- Information about historic Burlington, Vermont, ca. 1830, courtesy of the UVM Historic Preservation Program:
<http://www.uvm.edu/~histpres/HPJ/burl1830/index.html>
- Hartgen Archeological Associates, Inc., maintains an excellent list of historic map links (and other very useful information) at their HAA internet resources page:
<http://www.hartgen.com/bookmarks.htm>
- Historic USGS maps of New England; sponsor is the UNH Dimond Library:
<http://docs.unh.edu/towns/VermontTownList.htm>
- Library of Congress map collections:
<http://lcweb2.loc.gov/ammem/gmdhtml/gmdhome.html>
- Library of Congress panoramic maps on the web, 1847 - 1929:
<http://memory.loc.gov/ammem/pmhtml/panhome.html>
- Samuel De Champlain and New France:
<http://www.usm.maine.edu/~maps/exhibit2/sec2.htm>
- Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps: <http://sanborn.umi.com/>
- The USGS's Geographic Names Information System (GNIS) supplies an incredible resource of easily searchable and accessible relevant cultural resources data. See <http://mapping.usgs.gov/www/gnis/> for information and to query the data base. See also cemetery information. Apparently all cemeteries named on USGS quad maps are included in the data base.
