

November 24, 2015

Aurora County Historical Society
38925 253rd St
Plankinton, South Dakota 57368-5732

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" being more prominent and the last name "Zimprich" following in a similar style.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Heidi Rients, Acting DC, NRCS, Mitchell FO

November 24, 2015

Avon Historical Society
PO Box 153
Avon, South Dakota 57315-0153

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and "Z".

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Mark Rohlfing DC, NRCS, Tyndall FO

November 24, 2015

Bennett County Historical Society
PO Box 1054
Martin, South Dakota 57751-1054

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and "Z".

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Sandra Huber DC, NRCS, Martin FO

November 24, 2015

Bon Homme Heritage Museum
108 W 14th Ave
Tyndall, South Dakota 57066

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name being the most prominent.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Mark Rohlfing DC, NRCS, Tyndall FO

November 24, 2015

Brookings County Historical Society
PO Box 872
Brookings, South Dakota 57006-0872

Dear Director:

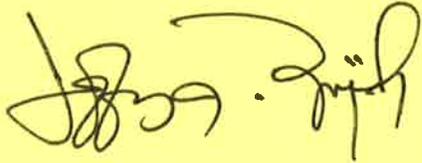

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a distinct "Z" at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Lynsee Planting, ACT DC, NRCS, Madison FO

November 24, 2015

Brookings Historic Preservation Committee
PO Box 270
Brookings, South Dakota 57006-0270

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized with a large initial "J" and a long horizontal stroke.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Lynsee Planting, ACT DC, NRCS, Madison FO

November 24, 2015

Brown County Historical Society
C/O Dacotah Prairie Museum
21 S Main St
Aberdeen, South Dakota 57401

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a long horizontal stroke extending to the right.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Jaime Rindels DC, NRCS, Aberdeen FO

November 24, 2015

Brown County /Aberdeen Landmark Committee
123 S Lincoln St
Aberdeen, South Dakota 57401-4215

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized with a large initial "J" and a long horizontal stroke.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Jaime Rindels DC, NRCS, Aberdeen FO

November 24, 2015

Brule County Historical Society
220 W 6th St
Kimball, South Dakota 57355-2250

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" being more prominent and the last name "Zimprich" following in a similar style.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Stacy Turgeon DC, NRCS, Chamberlain FO

November 24, 2015

Butte County Historical Society
295 Jensen Rd
Belle Fourche, South Dakota 57717

Dear Director:

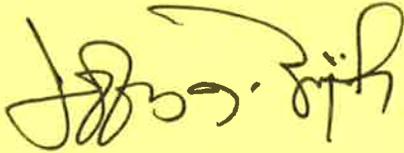

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a long horizontal stroke extending to the right.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:
Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Justin Boerboom, ACT DC, NRCS, Belle Fourche FO

November 24, 2015

Campbell County Museum Association
PO Box 1
Mound City, South Dakota 57646-0001

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name being the most prominent.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Christine Lousias DC, NRCS, Mound City FO

November 24, 2015

Canton Area Historical Society
606 Poplar Dr
Canton, South Dakota 57013-1711

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized and cursive.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Deron Ruesch DC, NRCS, Sioux Falls FO

November 24, 2015

Carthage Museum and Historical Society
PO Box 3
Carthage, South Dakota 57323-0003

Dear Director:

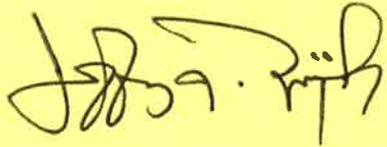

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized and cursive.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Kirk Lindgren DC, NRCS, Howard FO

November 24, 2015

Charles Mix County Historical Society
404 W Hwy 46
Wagner, South Dakota 57380

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a long, sweeping underline.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Kelly Tschumper DC, NRCS, Lake Andes FO

November 24, 2015

Charles Mix County Historical Society
PO Box 132
Geddes, South Dakota 57342-0132

Dear Director:

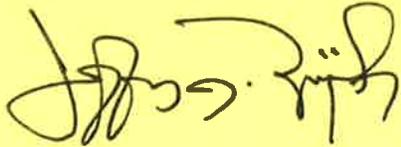

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized and cursive.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Kelly Tschumper DC, NRCS, Lake Andes FO

November 24, 2015

Clark County Historical Society
402 N Commercial St
Clark, South Dakota 57225

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized and cursive.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Shane Jordan DC, NRCS, Clark FO

November 24, 2015

Clay County Historical Society
15 Austin St
Vermillion, South Dakota 57069

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized and cursive.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Jeff Loof DC, NRCS, Elk Point FO

November 24, 2015

Clay County Historical Preservation Community
211 W Main Ste 102
Vermillion, South Dakota 57069

Dear Director:

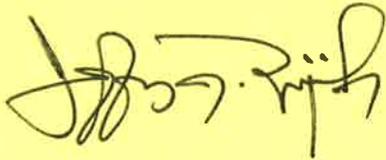

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and "Z".

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Jeff Loof DC, NRCS, Elk Point FO

November 24, 2015

Clear Lake Historical Society Museum
PO Box 391
Clear Lake, South Dakota 57226-0391

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and "Z".

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Amy Engels DC, NRCS, Clear Lake FO

November 24, 2015

Codington County Historical Society
27 1st Ave Se
Watertown, South Dakota 57201-3612

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name being the most prominent.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
James Dylla DC, NRCS, Watertown FO

November 24, 2015

Cold Springs Historical Society
PO Box 7
Pringle, South Dakota 57773

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" being more prominent and the last name "Zimprich" following in a similar style.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Brad Humbracht DC, NRCS, Hot Springs FO

November 24, 2015

Corsica Historical Society
PO Box 149
Corsica, South Dakota 57328-0149

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name being the most prominent.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Kelly Tschumper DC, NRCS, Lake Andes FO

November 24, 2015

Custer County Historical Society
PO Box 826
Custer, South Dakota 57730-0826

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized with a large, sweeping initial "J" and a prominent flourish at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Brad Humbracht DC, NRCS, Hot Springs FO

November 24, 2015

Czech Heritage Preservation Society
PO Box 3
Tabor, South Dakota 57063-0003

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized with a large initial "J" and a long horizontal stroke.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Mark Rohlfing DC, NRCS, Tyndall FO

November 24, 2015

Dakotaland Museum, Inc.
PO Box 1254
Huron, South Dakota 57350-1254

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized and cursive.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Kent Vlieger DC, NRCS, Huron FO

November 24, 2015

Dalesburg Scandinavian Association
30595 University Rd
Vermillion, South Dakota 57069-6507

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" and last name "Zimprich" clearly distinguishable.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Jeff Loof DC, NRCS, Elk Point FO

November 24, 2015

Danville Heritage Association Inc.
PO Box 177
Viborg, South Dakota 57070-0177

Dear Director:

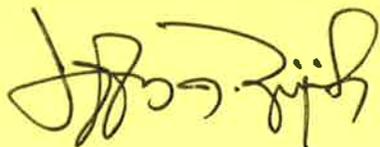

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is written in a cursive style with a large initial "J" and "Z".

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Merris Miller DC, NRCS, Parker FO

November 24, 2015

Day County Historical Society
711 W 1st St
Webster, South Dakota 57274

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a distinct "Z" at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:
Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Matt Hubers, ACT DC, NRCS, Webster FO

November 24, 2015

De Smet Museum
Po Drawer 70
De Smet, South Dakota 57231

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" being more prominent than the last name "Zimprich".

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Jim Finnegan DC, NRCS, DeSmet FO

November 24, 2015

Deadwood Historic Preservation Community
108 Sherman St
Deadwood, South Dakota 57732

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized and cursive.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Justin Boerboom, ACT DC, NRCS, Belle Fourche FO

November 24, 2015

Dell Rapids Society for Historic Preservation
PO Box 143
Dell Rapids, South Dakota 57022-0143

Dear Director:

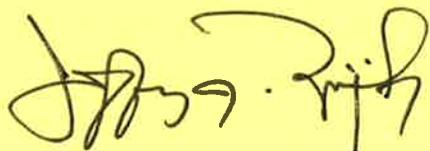

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a distinct "Z" at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Deron Ruesch DC, NRCS, Sioux Falls FO

November 24, 2015

Douglas County Historical Society
PO Box 638
Armour, South Dakota 57313-0638

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized with a large initial "J" and a long horizontal stroke.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Kelly Tschumper DC, NRCS, Lake Andes FO

November 24, 2015

Dunham Historical Society
PO Box 363
Wessington Springs, South Dakota 57382-0363

Dear Director:

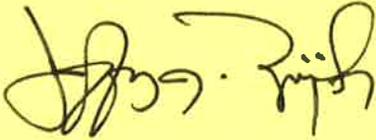

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name being the most prominent.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Donna Tiede DC, NRCS, Wessington Springs FO

November 24, 2015

Edgemont Area Historical Society
PO Box 193
Edgemont, South Dakota 57735-0193

Dear Director:

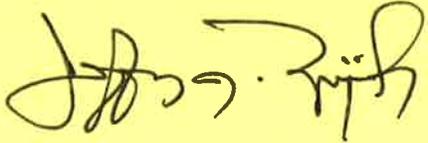

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a distinct "Z" at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Brad Humbracht DC, NRCS, Hot Springs FO

November 24, 2015

Elkton Community Museum/Historic Society
206 E 5th St
Elkton, South Dakota 57026

Dear Director:

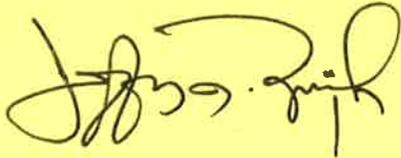

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large loop at the end of the last name.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Lynsee Planting, ACT DC, NRCS, Brookings FO

November 24, 2015

Estelline Historical Society
PO Box 2
Estelline, South Dakota 57234-0002

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized with a large initial "J" and a long horizontal stroke.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
James Dylla DC, NRCS, Hayti FO

November 24, 2015

Ethan Historical Society
PO Box 66
Ethan, South Dakota 57334-0066

Dear Director:

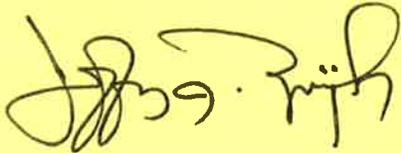

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized and cursive.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Heidi Rients DC, NRCS, Mitchell FO

November 24, 2015

Fall River county Historical Socieity
PO Box 361
Hot Springs, South Dakota 57747-0361

Dear Director:

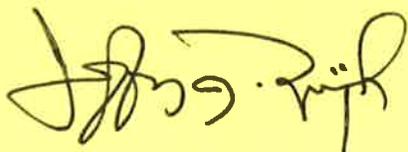

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a long horizontal stroke extending to the right.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Brad Humbracht DC, NRCS, Hot Springs FO

November 24, 2015

Faulk County Historical Society
PO Box 584
Faulkton, South Dakota 57438-0584

Dear Director:

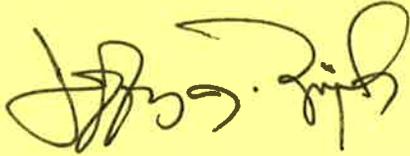

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized with a large, sweeping initial "J" and a prominent flourish at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Grady Heitmann DC, NRCS, Faulkton FO

November 24, 2015

Frederick Area Historical Society
PO Box 523
Frederick, South Dakota 57441-0523

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and "Z".

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Jaime Rindels DC, NRCS, Aberdeen FO

November 24, 2015

Freeman Historical Society
PO Box 1000
Freeman, South Dakota 57029

Dear Director:

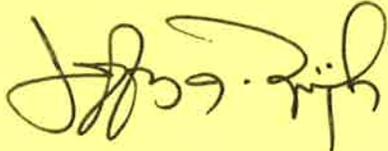

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name being the most prominent.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Brent Woods DC, NRCS, Parkston FO

November 24, 2015

Garretson Area Historical Society
PO Box 614
Garretson, South Dakota 57030-0614

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" being more prominent and the last name "Zimprich" following in a similar style.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Deron Ruesch DC, NRCS, Sioux Falls FO

November 24, 2015

Germans From Russia Heritage Society
29123 416th Ave
Tripp, South Dakota 57376

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a long horizontal stroke extending to the right.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Brent Woods DC, NRCS, Parkston FO

November 24, 2015

Grant County Historical Society
PO Box 201
Milbank, South Dakota 57252-0201

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a distinct "Z" at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Matt Hubers, ACT DC, NRCS, Webster FO

November 24, 2015

Gregory County Historical Society
29587 334th Ave
Dallas, South Dakota 57529

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized with a large initial "J" and a prominent flourish at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Brandon Walter DC, NRCS, Burke FO

November 24, 2015

Harding County Historical Society
HCR 2 Box 21
Prairie City, South Dakota 57649

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large loop at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Jaime Fuhrman DC, NRCS, Buffalo FO

November 24, 2015

Heritage Club of Platte
C/O Platte Library
PO Box 64
Platte, South Dakota 57369-0064

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a long, sweeping underline.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Kelly Tschumper DC, NRCS, Armour FO

November 24, 2015

Hetland Historical Society
106 Main St
Hetland, South Dakota 57244

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and "Z".

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Jim Finnegan DC, NRCS, DeSmet FO

November 24, 2015

High Plains Heritage Society
PO Box 524
Spearfish, South Dakota 57783-0524

Dear Director:

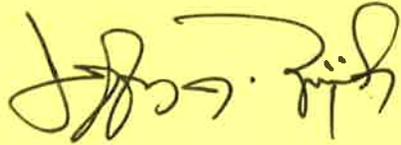

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a distinct "Z".

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Justin Boerboom, ACT DC, NRCS, Belle Fourche FO

November 24, 2015

Hillsdale Historic Society
36247 170th St
Rockham, South Dakota 57470

Dear Director:

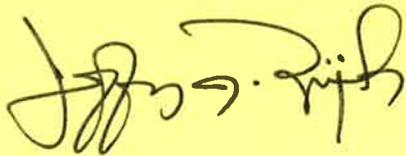

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" being more prominent and the last name "Zimprich" following in a similar style.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Grady Heitmann DC, NRCS, Faulkton FO

November 24, 2015

Historic Rapid City
C/O 1015 12th St
Rapid City, South Dakota 57701

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" and last name "Zimprich" clearly distinguishable.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Matthew Odden DC, NRCS, Rapid City FO

November 24, 2015

Howard Historical Preservation Community
1350 Trail Ridge Cir
Brookings, South Dakota 57006-3636

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized and cursive.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Lynsee Planting, ACT DC, NRCS, Brookings FO

November 24, 2015

Huron Historic Preservation Community
PO Box 1369
Huron, South Dakota 57350-1369

Dear Director:

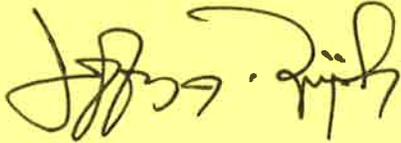

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a distinct "Z" at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Kent Vlieger DC, NRCS, Huron FO

November 24, 2015

Hyde County Historical/General Society
PO Box 392
Highmore, South Dakota 57345-0392

Dear Director:

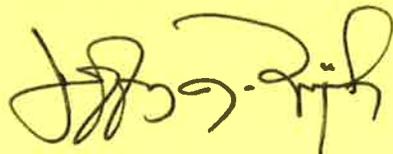

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized with a large, sweeping initial "J" and a long, horizontal stroke extending to the right.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Mike Larson DC, NRCS, Highmore FO

November 24, 2015

Jackson-Washabaugh Historical Museum
PO Box 58
Kadoka, South Dakota 57543

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized with a large, sweeping initial "J" and a prominent "Z".

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Kelly O'Connell DC, NRCS, Kadoka FO

November 24, 2015

Klein Museum
1820 W Grand Crossing
Mobridge, South Dakota 57601

Dear Director:

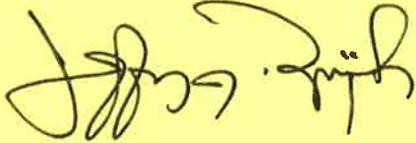

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized with a large, sweeping initial "J" and a prominent flourish at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Denis Bachman DC, NRCS, Selby FO

November 24, 2015

Lake County Historical Society
Smith-Zimmermann Museum
820 N Washington Ave
Madison, South Dakota 57042

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" being more prominent than the last name "Zimprich".

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Lynsee Planting, ACT DC, NRCS, Brookings FO

November 24, 2015

Lake Norden Historical Society Museum
19243 448th Ave
Lake Norden, South Dakota 57248

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a distinct "Z".

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
James Dylla DC, NRCS, Hayti FO

November 24, 2015

Lake Preston Museum
111 3rd Street Northeast
Lake Preston, South Dakota 57249

Dear Director:

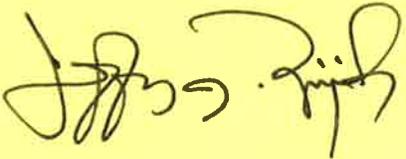

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" and last name "Zimprich" clearly distinguishable.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Jim Finnegan DC, NRCS, DeSmet FO

November 24, 2015

Lawrence County Historical Society
HARCC
150 Sherman St
Deadwood, South Dakota 57732

Dear Director:

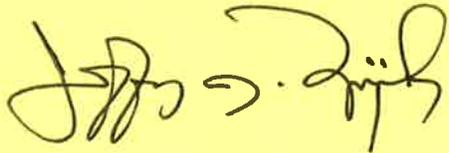

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" and last name "Zimprich" clearly distinguishable.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Justin Boerboom, ACT DC, NRCS, Belle Fourche FO

November 24, 2015

Lead Historical Preservation Community
801 W Main St
Lead, South Dakota 57754

Dear Director:

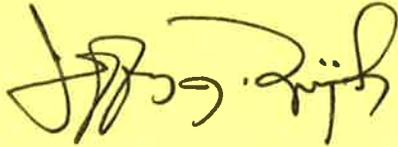

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" and last name "Zimprich" clearly distinguishable.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Justin Boerboom, ACT DC, NRCS, Belle Fourche FO

November 24, 2015

Lennox Area Historical Society
RR 2 Box 15
Lennox, South Dakota 57039

Dear Director:

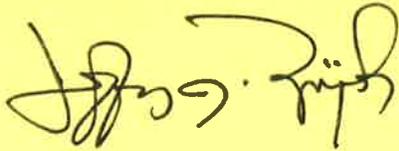

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a long, sweeping underline.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Deron Ruesch DC, NRCS, Sioux Falls FO

November 24, 2015

Loricks Peterson Historical Society
Po Box 243
Oldham, South Dakota 57051-0243

Dear Director:

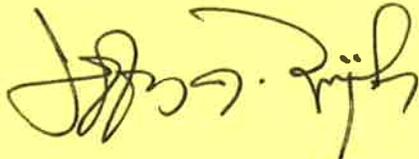

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a long horizontal stroke extending to the right.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Jim Finnegan DC, NRCS, DeSmet FO

November 24, 2015

Lyman County Historical Society
PO Box 231
Presho, South Dakota 57568-0231

Dear Director:

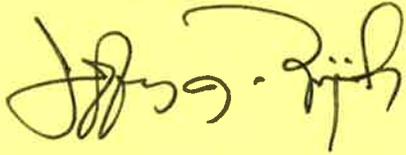

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a distinct "Z" at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Shane Reis DC, NRCS, Kennebec FO

November 24, 2015

Marshall County Historical Society
10539 425th Ave
Britton, South Dakota 57430

Dear Director:

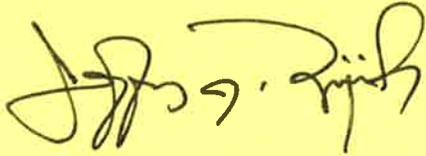

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" being more prominent and the last name "Zimprich" following in a similar style.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:
Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Judith Schultz DC, NRCS, Britton FO

November 24, 2015

Mellette House Association
900 S Lake Dr
Watertown, South Dakota 57201

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is written in a cursive style with a large, sweeping initial "J".

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
James Dylla DC, NRCS, Watertown FO

November 24, 2015

Mellette Memorial Association
Ann Edleman
PO Box 212
Watertown, South Dakota 57201-0212

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized and cursive.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
James Dylla DC, NRCS, Watertown FO

November 24, 2015

Menno Historical Society
211 S Pine St
Menno, South Dakota 57045-2121

Dear Director:

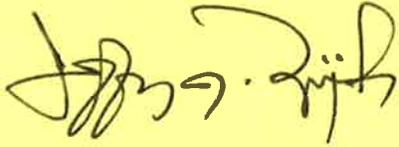

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" and last name "Zimprich" clearly distinguishable.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Brent Woods DC, NRCS, Parkston FO

November 24, 2015

Miner County Historical Society
PO Box 245
Howard, South Dakota 57349-0245

Dear Director:

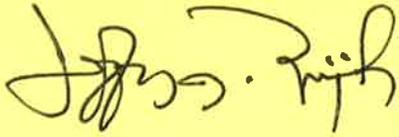

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a long horizontal stroke extending to the right.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Kirk Lindgren DC, NRCS, Howard FO

November 24, 2015

Minnehaha County Historical Society
200 W 6th St
Sioux Falls, South Dakota 57104

Dear Director:

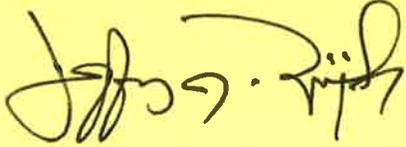

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a distinct "Z" at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Deron Ruesch DC, NRCS, Sioux Falls FO

November 24, 2015

Minnilusa Historical Association
The Journey Museum
222 New York St
Rapid City, South Dakota 57701

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a long, sweeping underline.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Matthew Odden DC, NRCS, Rapid City FA

November 24, 2015

Mitchell Area Historical Society
PO Box 263
Mitchell, South Dakota 57301-0263

Dear Director:

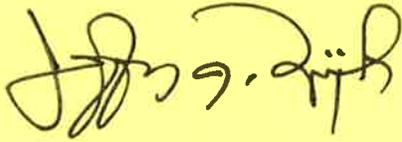

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" being more prominent and the last name "Zimprich" following in a similar style.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Heidi Rients, Acting DC, NRCS, Mitchell FO

November 24, 2015

Moody County Historical Society
706 E Pipestone Ave
Flandreau, South Dakota 57028-1310

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" being the most prominent part.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Rhonda Nelson DC, NRCS, Flandreau FO

November 24, 2015

Newell Museum
PO Box 433
Newell, South Dakota 57760-0433

Dear Director:

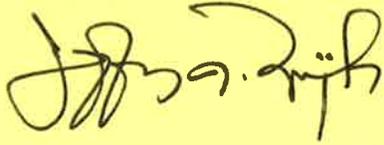

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" being more prominent and the last name "Zimprich" following in a similar style.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Justin Boerboom, ACT DC, NRCS, Belle Fourche FO

November 24, 2015

Pierre-Ft. Pierre Historic Preservation Commission
116 Pasque Dr
Pierre, South Dakota 57501

Dear Director:

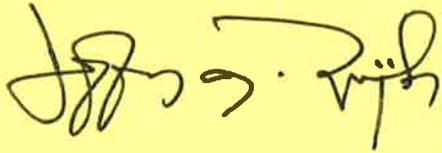

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a distinct "Z" at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Dillon Blaha DC, NRCS, Pierre FO

November 24, 2015

Plankinton Preservation Society
PO Box 367
Plankinton, South Dakota 57368-0367

Dear Director:

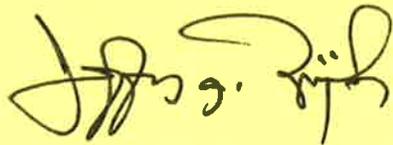

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large loop at the end of the last name.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Heidi Rients, Acting DC, NRCS, Mitchell FO

November 24, 2015

Potter County Historical Society
310 S Park St
Gettysburg, South Dakota 57442

Dear Director:

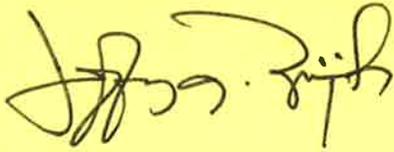

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" being more prominent and the last name "Zimprich" following in a similar style.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Kory Kezar DC, NRCS, Gettysburg FO

November 24, 2015

Rapid City Historical Preservation Community
Accts Pay, City Finance Office
300 6th St
Rapid City, South Dakota 57701-2724

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a distinct "Z" at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Matthew Odden DC, NRCS, Rapid City FO

November 24, 2015

Rural School Historical Society
804 E 3rd St
Canton, South Dakota 57013

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is stylized with a large, sweeping initial "J" and a long horizontal stroke extending to the right.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Deron Reusch DC, NRCS, Sioux Falls FO

November 24, 2015

Scotlund Historic Preservation community
Attn: Linda Kluthe
351 4th St
Scotland, South Dakota 57059-2112

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a long horizontal stroke extending to the right.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Mark Rohlfing DC, NRCS, Tyndall FO

November 24, 2015

Sioux Falls Building of Historic Preservation
City Hall-Planning Office
PO Box 7402
Sioux Falls, South Dakota 57117-7402

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a long, sweeping underline.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Deron Reusch DC, NRCS, Sioux Falls FO

November 24, 2015

Spearfish Historic Preservation Community
625 5th St
Spearfish, South Dakota 57783

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" being more prominent and the last name "Zimprich" following in a similar style.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Justin Boerboom, ACT DC, NRCS, Belle Fourche FO

November 24, 2015

Spink County Historical Society
213 E 2nd St
Redfield, South Dakota 57469

Dear Director:

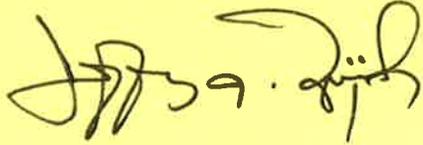

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a distinct "Z" at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Shane Jordan DC, NRCS, Redfield FO

November 24, 2015

Stanley County Historical Society
PO Box 698
Fort Pierre, South Dakota 57532

Dear Director:

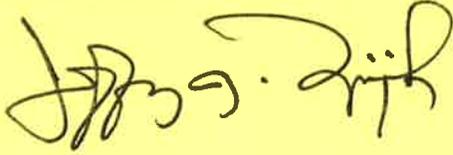

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" being more prominent and the last name "Zimprich" following in a similar style.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Dillan Blaha DC, NRCS, Pierre FO

November 24, 2015

Timber Lake and Area Historic Society
PO Box 181
Timber Lake, South Dakota 57656-0181

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a distinct "Z" at the end.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Kari Jo Lawrence DC, NRCS, Timber Lake FO

November 24, 2015

Town of Fairfax Restoration
PO Box 235
Fairfax, South Dakota 57335-0235

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" and last name "Zimprich" clearly distinguishable.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Brandon Walter DC, NRCS, Burke FO

November 24, 2015

Union County Historical Society
PO Box 552
Elk Point, South Dakota 57025-0552

Dear Director:

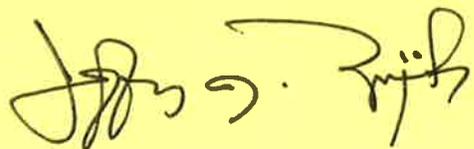

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a long horizontal stroke extending to the right.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Jeff Loof DC, NRCS, Elk Point FO

November 24, 2015

Verendrye Museum Inc.
PO Box 665
Fort Pierre, South Dakota 57532-0665

Dear Director:

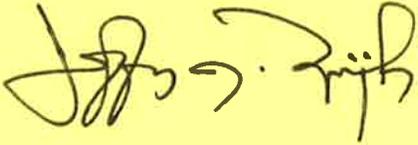

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and a long horizontal stroke extending to the right.

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Dillon Blaha DC, NRCS, Pierre FO

November 24, 2015

White Area Historical Society
PO Box 27
White, South Dakota 57276-0027

Dear Director:

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Jeffrey" being more prominent than the last name "Zimprich".

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Lynsee Planting, ACT DC, NRCS, Brookings FO

November 24, 2015

Yankton County Historical Society
Dakota Territorial Museum
610 Summit St
Yankton, South Dakota 57078-3858

Dear Director:

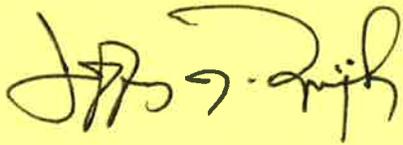

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a federal agency that works with private landowners to help them conserve, maintain, and improve their natural resources. The NRCS emphasizes voluntary, science-based conservation; technical assistance; partnerships; incentive-based programs; and cooperative problem solving at the community level. Over the next several years, the NRCS will continue to assist landowners, in South Dakota (SD), with conservation activities as part of its Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and other programs throughout SD. Project activities may include such things as pipelines and watering tanks for livestock, animal waste storage facilities, planning shelterbelts or riparian buffers, grassed waterways, terraces, and other conservation practices.

As a federal agency, the NRCS complies with the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) of 1966 and takes historic properties (i.e., buildings, structures, archeological sites, objects, and districts eligible or listed in the National Register of Historic Places) into account for all undertakings that have the potential to affect such properties. To assist the NRCS in identifying historic properties (also called cultural resources) that may be important to different communities or groups, we are soliciting public involvement and consultation on our activities, and are asking you to please respond to this letter if your organization has specific locations of concern regarding historic properties. While the SD NRCS has professional cultural resource specialists on staff and each project with the potential to affect historic properties is checked for known archeological sites or national or state register listed properties, local communities are often aware of other resources in their rural areas that have not been previously identified on state or national lists. If your organization does have locations of cultural resource concerns, please identify these general areas on a town or county map and return the map to our office within 45 days of receipt of this letter. As our office reviews future EQIP or other program applications, the NRCS will identify those program activities which have the potential to affect historic properties/cultural resources and consult with any identified interested public official on a project-by-project basis. If you have no specific concerns, you may either notify our office of such in writing or simply not respond to this letter. Also, please let the NRCS know if you are aware of any other interested individuals or groups. For your information, similar letters have also been sent to each county commission.

Please visit our Web site at <http://www.sd.nrcs.usda.gov/> to find out more about our agency and programs.

Please contact Dana R. Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, at (605) 352-1217, if you have any further questions or concerns. Thank you for your cooperation in protecting our important resources.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey J. Zimprich". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "J" and "Z".

JEFFREY J. ZIMPRICH
State Conservationist

cc:

Dana Vaillancourt, State Cultural Resource Specialist, NRCS, Huron SO
Mark Brannen DC, NRCS, Yankton FO